Medicity and Patient Safety Institute Partner to Provide Enhanced Services to Physicians and States

Agreement Will Accelerate Delivery of Clinical Data to the Point of Care and Provide Bioterrorism Surveillance and Reporting Capability

Plano, TX and Salt Lake City, UT, May 6, 2003 -The Patient Safety Institute (PSI), a national non-profit patient safety organization, and Medicity, Inc, a leading physician portal and clinical workflow company, today announced a strategic partnership to provide an infrastructure for clinical information sharing to government and professional organizations concerned with patient safety issues, including a homeland security solution for state governments. Medicity becomes the newest Supporting Partner of this collaborative industry initiative that includes AVAYA, Cingular, Dictaphone, First Consulting Group, Hewlett Packard, Netegrity, SeeBeyond, Teletech, and WilTel.

An early goal of the partnership is to leverage the capabilities of Medicity's "push technology" and PSI's position as a trustee and facilitator for clinical information sharing to improve the quality of healthcare. The alliance also provides state health officials with the ability to lower healthcare costs and monitor trends in aggregated patient data to detect public health risks like those associated with bioterrorism or epidemiological outbreaks like SARS.

Medicity has developed a suite of sophisticated clinical software products and assembled a team of healthcare software professionals that create solutions for aggregating, sharing, securing, managing, and evaluating clinical information within organizations and communities and among disparate electronic systems. Medicity's clients include the nation's largest healthcare provider enterprises.

Dr. James K. Lassetter, Chairman and CEO of Medicity emphasized, "Medicity is committed to the PSI mission—the improvement of patient safety through improved information flow in communities. This new partnership gives PSI access to Medicity's proven clinical technology to empower its vision and gives Medicity the opportunity to collaborate with a premiere patient advocacy group and its blue-chip partners on solutions that address the industry's largest issues related to patient safety and quality of patient care."

PSI was formed to provide the healthcare industry with a shared communications and operating infrastructure (similar to the VISA network) that significantly improves the timeliness and availability of crucial clinical data to those clinicians and agencies concerned with protecting the nation's health. PSI is dedicated to providing physicians with clinical information access for decision support. Under PSI's collaborative governance model, the nation's patient, physician and hospital leaders have come together to harness the power of emerging technology for the improvement of health care quality and the reduction of health care costs.

"Our partnership with Medicity enhances the capabilities of the technology foundation supporting PSI while simultaneously establishing an important link to a physician-led organization that is closely aligned with PSI's focus on providing clinical information to improve healthcare quality and lower costs," said Jack Lewin, MD PSI's Board Chair and the CEO of the California Medical Association. "By combining PSI's commitment to patient privacy with Medicity's clinical workflow expertise, we are also able to immediately provide an important homeland security capability while preserving the confidentiality of patient information."
